

Titel: PhD

Name: Martin J. O'Malley

Position\Institut\Universität\Ort und Land

Wissenschaftlicher Mitarbeiter, Ethikzentrum Jena - Friedrich Schiller-Universität Jena, Deutschland,
Associate Manager of Global Applied Ethics Network

Kurzvorstellung und wirtschaftsethischer Bezug

Martin J. O'Malley, PhD, STL, MDiv, MA-Phil, geb. 1966, Zur Zeit Wissenschaftlicher Mitarbeiter des Ethikzentrums an der Universität Jena. BA Hamilton College, Master in Philosophie (St. Louis University), MDiv und Lizenz für Moraltheologie (Weston Jesuit School of Theology, Cambridge, USA), PhD in Theologischer Ethik (Boston College). Dozent für Theologie am Loyola College, Maryland. 2002 Dozent am Boston College sowie am Harvard College, Gastforscher (Fellow) am Woodstock Theological Center, Georgetown, und am Institut für Gesellschaftspolitik an der Hochschule für Philosophie, München. Veröffentlichungen in Rechts-, Sozial Fragen und medizinische Ethik.

Englisch:

Martin J. O'Malley, Associate Manager of Global Applied Ethics Network, Research Scholar at the Center for Applied Ethics, EthikZentrum, at the Friedrich Schiller University, Jena. He is a graduate of Hamilton College, (BA 1988), St. Louis University (MA 1993), the Weston Jesuit School of Theology in Cambridge (MDiv 1998; Licentiate in Moral Theology 2008) and he received his doctorate from Boston College in Theological Ethics (2007). Teaching positions include fellowships at Harvard University and Boston College, instructor in history and philosophy at LeMoyne College in New York and theology at Loyola College, Maryland. Research positions include visiting fellowships at the Woodstock Theological Center at Georgetown and the Institut für Gesellschaftspolitik an der Hochschule für Philosophie, Munich. He has published in areas of law, social questions, and medical ethics.